THE GRAND JURY CHARGES:

INTRODUCTION TO ALL COUNTS

At all times relevant to this superseding indictment,
unless otherwise indicated:

The Enterprise

1. The members and associates of the Bonanno organized crime family of La Cosa Nostra (the "Bonanno family") constituted an "enterprise," as defined in Title 18, United States Code, Section 1961(4), that is, a group of individuals associated in fact. The Bonanno family engaged in, and its activities affected, interstate and foreign commerce. The Bonanno family was an organized criminal group that operated in the Eastern District of New York, other parts of the United States and Canada.

2. The Bonanno family operated through groups of individuals headed by "captains," who were also referred to as "skippers," "caporegimes" and "capodecinas." These groups, which were referred to as "crews," "regimes" and "decinas," consisted of "made" members of the Bonanno family, also referred to as "soldiers," "friends of ours," "good fellows" and "buttons," as well as associates of the Bonanno family.

3. Each captain was responsible for supervising the criminal activities of his crew and providing crew members and associates with support and protection. In return, the captain received a share of the earnings of each of the crew's members and associates.

4. Above the captains were the three highest-ranking members of the Bonanno family. The head of the Bonanno family was known as the "boss." He was assisted by an "underboss" and a counselor, who was known as the "consigliere." With the assistance of the underboss and consigliere, the boss was responsible for setting policy, resolving disputes between members and associates of the Bonanno family and members and associates of other criminal organizations, and approving all significant actions taken by members and associates of the Bonanno family, including murder.

5. The boss, underboss and consigliere of the Bonanno family, who were sometimes referred to collectively as the "administration," supervised, supported, protected and disciplined the captains, soldiers and associates and regularly received reports regarding the activities of the members and associates of the Bonanno family. In return for their supervision and protection, the boss, underboss and consigliere received part of the illegal earnings of each crew. When a member of the administration was unable to fulfill his criminal responsibilities because of incarceration, ill health or other reason, a member of the Bonanno family was often appointed to that position in an acting capacity.

6. The Bonanno family was part of a nationwide criminal organization known by various names, including the "mafia" and "La Cosa Nostra," which operated through entities known as "families." The ruling body of this nationwide organization was known as the "commission," the membership of which at various times has included the bosses of the five New York City-based families, to wit: the Bonanno, Colombo, Gambino, Genovese and Luchese organized crime families. For a period of time, the boss of the Bonanno family was removed from membership within the commission.

7. From time to time, the Bonanno family would propose a list of associates to be "made," that is, to become members of the Bonanno family. The list would be circulated to the other families based in New York City.

The Purposes, Methods and Means of the Enterprise

8. The Bonanno family constituted an ongoing organization, whose members functioned as a continuing unit for a common purpose of achieving the objectives of the enterprise. The principal purpose of the Bonanno family was to generate money for its members and associates. This purpose was implemented by members and associates of the Bonanno family through various criminal activities, including arson, credit card fraud, drug trafficking, extortion, kidnaping, illegal gambling, interstate transportation of stolen goods, loansharking, and robbery. The members and associates of the Bonanno family also furthered the enterprise's criminal activities by threatening economic injury and using and threatening to use physical violence, including murder.

9. Although the primary purpose of the Bonanno family was to generate money for its members and associates, the members and associates at times used the resources of the Bonanno family to settle personal grievances and vendettas, sometimes with the approval of higher-ranking members of the Bonanno family. For those purposes, members and associates of the enterprise were asked and expected to carry out, among other crimes, acts of violence, including murder and assault.

10. The members and associates of the Bonanno family engaged in conduct designed to prevent government detection of their identities, their illegal activities and the location of proceeds of those activities. That conduct included a commitment to murdering persons, particularly members or associates of organized crime families, who were perceived as potential witnesses against members and associates of the enterprise.

11. Members and associates of the Bonanno family often coordinated street-level criminal activity, such as drug trafficking, illegal gambling, loansharking, extortion, and robbery, with members and associates of other organized crime families.

and a criminal defense attorney to send messages from prison to members and associates of the Bonanno family regarding the maintenance and ongoing operation of the Bonanno family. Prior to his November 19, 2004 incarceration, BASCIANO used the criminal defense attorney and a private investigator to send messages regarding the maintenance and ongoing operation of the Bonanno family to the official boss of the Bonanno family, Joseph Massino, who was incarcerated at the MDC.

18. On or about November 23, 2004, the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO saw Joseph Massino, the official boss of the Bonanno family, at the federal district courthouse in Brooklyn, New York. 19. On or about December 3, 2004, the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO met Massino at the MDC. BASCIANO discussed, among other things, the murder of Randolph Pizzolo, also known as "Randy." 20. Pizzolo's body was found on December 1, 2004 in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn, New York. Pizzolo's body had multiple gun shot wounds. Pizzolo was an associate of the Bonanno family.

21. Following the December 3, 2004 encounter with the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO, Massino reported to federal law enforcement officials the substance of BASCIANO's comments regarding the proposed murder of a federal law enforcement official and the murder of Pizzolo.

22. On January 3, 2005 and January 7, 2005, the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO met with Massino at the MDC. Prior to those meetings, Massino gave his consent to federal law enforcement officials to record these conversations, and the conversations between BASCIANO and Massino on January 3 and 7, 2005 were recorded.

23. During the two January 2005 meetings, the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO and Massino spoke about, among other things, the threat on the federal law enforcement official, the murder of Pizzolo and the ongoing and future operation of the Bonanno family.

24. During the January 3, 2005 conversation, the defendant VINCENT BASCIANO explained his justification for ordering the murder of Pizzolo. In response to the question "Why didn't you just chase him?", BASCIANO stated: "You want to know why? Because he is a f-----g dangerous kid that don't f-----g listen." Later in the conversation, BASCIANO further discussed the murder of Pizzolo: "I thought this kid would have been a good wake-up call for everybody."
